13 ADDITIONAL TERMS

Porter Services

Porter Services include meeting arriving or departing passengers, taking care of their luggage, and guiding them to the correct destination at the airport. If an alternative meeting point has not been agreed upon, arriving passengers are met in the baggage hall. Departing passengers are met at their arrival point at the airport, for example, at a chartered bus stop or taxi rank.

The Seller uses hand-held signs where the company's name and the Customer's reference number/name are clearly visible. Porter Service personnel wear uniforms which clearly show that they are employed at the airport with the Seller's logo printed on the uniform, to ensure that the Customer and the Seller's representative recognise each other at the meeting place. All bookings must be in writing and can be made:

a) On the Website.

A booking should be made at least 24 hours in advance. The Seller may, in its absolute discretion, accept a booking by phone at short notice. Standard Porter Service does not include transportation through transit areas or standing in line together with the Customer at the check-in desk.

With large groups to be taken to the Departure Hall, the Seller provides normal baggage trolleys on which the Seller loads the Customer's luggage. As passengers must check in their luggage themselves, it is more convenient for the Customer to receive the baggage trolley containing their luggage just outside the Departure Hall.

Any bookings cancelled less than 24 hours before the service was due to commence will incur a £6 cancellation fee. Payment is made in advance on the Website. Customers who have a contract for ongoing Services with the Seller are invoiced.

The Seller is responsible only for damages or loss due to negligence on the part of the company up to a maximum limit of £50 per item of luggage. The Seller is not responsible where damage or loss has been caused to the Customer by a third party.

MailandFly is a service which sends items deposited at airport Security Control to an address chosen by the Customer.

The Seller reserves the right to x-ray and open letters and parcels to check their content, to inform the appropriate authorities of the Customer's usage of this service and to refuse to forward or to destroy certain items (e.g. spoiled foodstuffs and items listed under the Dangerous Goods Act).

The Seller stores the Customer's item(s) in its warehouse. Where the Seller has notified a Customer that it is unable to forward an item, the Customer has up to 42 days (or up to 57 days for MailandFly Remote at London City Airport) to claim their item after it has been deposited with the Seller. If an item is not claimed within 42 days (or within 57 days for MailandFly remote at London City Airport) it will become the property of the Seller.

Potential claims must be raised with the Seller within 30 days from the date of payment. The Seller's liability to the Customer for damaged, spoiled or lost item(s) belonging to the Customer, caused by the Seller or in transit, is limited to £50 per act.

The Customer should deposit and collect their property at the left luggage desk. The customer receives a receipt or unique reference number when depositing an item, stating the number of items deposited. This receipt or unique reference number must be retained and presented at the time of collection.

In the case of lost or damaged receipts or loss of the unique reference number, the Customer may collect their luggage upon proof of identification and accurate description of the items including their content and the number of items.

It is strictly prohibited to hand in items that have offensive odours, leaks, or that contain explosives or corrosive materials etc. The Seller reserves the right to refuse or discard such items at time of discovery.

Lost property and Lost Property Remote

The Seller keeps Lost Property for a maximum of three months from the date the item was registered as lost. Items of Lost Property not collected within three months will become the property of the Seller and processed accordingly.

An administration fee of up to £25 (as amended from time to time) is charged when the Customer collects the recovered item. This fee covers the costs of storage, registration, resources, processing and other administrative costs.

Where the Customer has contacted the Seller and agreed to collect a recovered item directly from the Lost Property Desk, the item(s) will be kept for up to one month from the date the Customer was informed of the item's whereabouts.

For an additional fee, recovered items can be sent by the Seller's nominated courier service to the Customer's chosen address.

14 PREMIUM PROTECTION

14.1 Overview

The Customer will have the option of entering into a contract to take out Premium Protection through the Seller, to insure the item(s) while in transit. The Seller will charge the Customer a separate fee for providing this service.

The information provided by the Customer in connection with quotations obtained and receipt(s) provided forms the basis on which the Premium Protection cover and fees are agreed. The Customer must ensure to comply with the legal duty of disclosure of all material facts relating to the risk as well as the accuracy and completeness of the information provided. All material facts must be disclosed – failure to do so could invalidate the Premium Protection.

14.2 Fee

The starting fee for the Premium Protection is £14. This insures contents up to £700. For contents with a value exceeding £700 a fee equivalent to 2% of the declared value of the item as provided by the Customer.

14.3 Coverage

The Customer will be asked to declare a current, credible value of the contents to the Seller. The value of the contents insured under the Premium Protection shall be the amount declared by the Customer as the contents value, but not exceeding the maximum coverable amount as set in these terms and conditions. The maximum coverable amount is limited to €2,500.00 per total shipment. Sentimental values cannot be taken into account.

If the nature of the contents are such that the Customs refuse to release the item, the Seller deems this as out of its control and therefore the Premium Protection does not cover if such a scenario arises during shipment. The customer should then take up the concern directly with Customs.

14.4 Period of Coverage

The Premium Protection commences from the time the goods leave the Warehouse and/or location for the commencement of the transit and continues during the ordinary course of transit, until the item(s) are discharged at the final destination as provided by the Customer at the time of accepting the Terms and Conditions for the Premium Protection.

14.5 Withdrawal

No refunds can be claimed or cancellations requested after the Premium Protection fee has been paid, with exception whereby the shipment is cancelled and the Seller has not yet incurred any costs related to shipping, In this case, the Seller may agree to refund the fee at its own discretion. This rule helps the Seller to prevent fraudulent orders, i.e.: cancelling products after the shipment has been delivered safely. In special circumstances, exceptions may be considered.

The Customer will not receive a refund of the fee if a claim has been made by the Customer during the period of Premium Protection.

14.6 Compensation procedure

Where the Customer is eligible to claim compensation during the period of insurance, the Customer must put forward their claim in writing against the Seller within the designated timeframe of 10 working days as previously mentioned. In the claim the Customer must provide evidence of ownership as well as credible evidence that the content value matches the value declared upon commencing the Premium Protection.

The Customer cannot raise a claim against the Seller if delivery is refused or impossible, or if the Customer has provided an incorrect address.
